LETTER FROM THE EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

It's hard to believe it has been more than a quarter-century since Carnival Foundation was created to be the instrument of Carnival Corporation's philanthropic efforts. During that time, we have been continually guided by the late Ted Arison's founding principle that a company is not successful until it becomes a good corporate citizen and gives back to its community.

In the case of Carnival Corporation and its global cruise brands, it is not one community but many, located in Miami, around the United States, throughout the Caribbean and beyond. As Carnival Cruise Line grew into Carnival Corporation, Carnival Foundation's reach also has expanded.

Looking back, we have much to be proud of. We share many of the Foundation's projects and initiatives in this brochure, which celebrates the thousands of lives touched and changed by Carnival Corporation and its employees over the years.

Looking ahead, we share our vision for the future as we strive to build a lasting legacy of making a positive impact in the communities where we live and work, through empowering youth, enhancing education and strengthening families.

Both the past and the future of Carnival Foundation are founded on the strength of our partnerships with the organizations and institutions with whom we work. We're taking this opportunity to thank them for helping us "make waves that matter."

CARNIVAL FOUNDATION 25 YEARS AND COUNTING

Keeping the Voyage Close to Heart

Through monetary and in-kind donations, innovative philanthropic programs, employee fundraisers and hands-on volunteer initiatives, Carnival Foundation and the brands of Carnival Corporation support a variety of organizations. From providing meals to the homeless to working toward medical advancement and education, the reach of Carnival Foundation is all-encompassing.

During times of crisis, Carnival Foundation works closely with national and international relief organizations, coordinating corporate and employee donations for emergencies, such as hurricanes in the U.S. and in the Caribbean.

Following the example set forth by Carnival's founder, the late Ted Arison, and continued by his son Micky Arison, Carnival Foundation endeavors to make South Florida and other communities better places to live and work.

CARNIVAL SCHOLARSHIP & MENTORING PROGRAM

Guided by Compassion

In 2007, Carnival Foundation launched an in-the-workplace mentoring program, pairing high school students with Carnival employee volunteers. Those chosen are either referred by a community partner or are graduates of the HEAT Academy — an after-school academic enrichment program sponsored by Carnival and offered at three at-risk Miami-Dade County Public Schools. Students who meet the program's middle school grade criteria are invited to participate in the Carnival Scholarship & Mentoring Program all four years of their high school education.

Currently, 110 Carnival management team members serve as mentors to 110 high school students in Miami-Dade County. During the school year, participants visit Carnival's headquarters once a month to shadow and observe their mentors in an office environment. Students are also encouraged to attend group activities and presentations designed to assist with college preparedness, financial literacy, life skills and more. In their senior year, students can apply for one of 15 college scholarships purchased annually by Carnival Foundation from Florida Prepaid College Foundation. Carnival scholarships are awarded to students based on academic merit, leadership skills, community involvement and future potential. Since 2003, Carnival has purchased 240 scholarships valued at more than $3.5 million, and has awarded 135 to mentoring program students.

Graduates of the program have pursued or are currently pursuing their bachelor's, master's or doctoral degrees. With many graduates giving back and becoming mentors themselves, the Carnival Scholarship & Mentoring Program has left a lasting impact on the lives of many who have participated throughout the years.

“I’ve been in the Carnival Scholarship & Mentoring Program nearly 10 years. For me, it’s about giving back and making a difference. I had a tumultuous childhood, and it took one person in my life to say: I think he can do better; I’ll take responsibility for him. Because of that experience, I relate to a lot of the kids. I relate to a lot of their struggles. I couldn’t be more appreciative to have the opportunity to participate in the Carnival Scholarship & Mentoring Program and see it translate into success with the kids.”

CARNIVAL SCHOLARSHIP & MENTORING PROGRAM

When Dreams Set Sail

For twins Stephanie and Geovanna Hernandez, going to college was always a given. How they were going to pay for it was not.

Growing up with a single mother on a sparse income, the twins knew they would have to make their own way if they were going to be the first in their family to attend college. Through the Carnival Scholarship & Mentoring Program, Stephanie and Geovanna were among the first high school seniors to earn the Carnival scholarship that opened the door to Florida State University.

The girls entered the Carnival Scholarship & Mentoring Program as high school sophomores after attending the HEAT Academy. The mentoring program taught them that, with hard work and determination, anything is possible.

Stephanie recalls bonding with her mentor, Dr. Rosalie Payne, who made a deep impression on her. Payne was the first person she met with a PhD, a degree Stephanie herself is working toward at the University of Texas at San Antonio, after earning two degrees in demography.

“Dr. Payne made me more than a better student. She made me a better human being, more responsible, more ambitious and more inquisitive,” said Stephanie.
“She taught me to see obstacles as an opportunity to succeed.”

Geovanna’s Carnival mentor, Vicky Blanch, taught her to dream big. It was Blanch who planted the idea that she could go to college anywhere, and after earning her BA in sociology she enrolled at Boston University for her MBA.

“What I remember most is the one-on-one time I had with Vicky in her office,” said Geovanna. “During my visit, she cleared her schedule and I knew it was my time.”

Days with their mentors were spent discussing everything from school to music to goals and aspirations. Both twins say their mentors gave them the confidence to apply to colleges beyond Miami. The scholarship meant they could focus on their studies and dedicate their spare time to giving back to the community. Geovanna was a Big Sister in Tallahassee and is one in Boston, while Stephanie worked with elementary, middle and high school students.

When asked what they’d tell an incoming freshman about the Carnival program, Geovanna said, “You can easily show up and go through the motions, but be proactive and make the best of the experience. Use it to better yourself and develop new skills.”

Stephanie advises, “Don’t be afraid to ask for help. At the Carnival Scholarship & Mentoring Program, someone is always willing to help. Raise your hand and ask questions.”

The twins credit the program with teaching them how to dress, speak in public, prepare for an interview, understand professional etiquette, write a check, and maintain a budget. But most important, was the emotional connection with their mentors.

“I had someone to look up to who wasn’t in my family, someone who really cared for me,” said Stephanie.

“We had access to a network of people who cared about us and who were truly invested in us,” added Geovanna.

KEY INITIATIVES & PROGRAMS

National YoungArts Foundation

The National YoungArts Foundation identifies and nurtures accomplished young artists in the visual, literary, design and performing arts, and assists them at critical junctures in their educational and professional development. YoungArts aspires to create a community of alumni that provides a lifetime of encouragement, opportunity and support.

The National YoungArts Foundation was established in 1981 by Lin and Ted Arison, the founder of Carnival Cruise Line. YoungArts' signature program is an application-based award for emerging artists — ages 15 to 18 or in grades 10 to 12 — from across the United States.

Selected through a blind adjudication process conducted by an independent panel of distinguished artists, YoungArts winners receive valuable support, including financial awards of up to $10,000, professional development and educational experiences working with renowned mentors, such as Mikhail Baryshnikov, Sarah Brightman, Plácido Domingo, Frank Gehry, Jeff Koons, Wynton Marsalis, Rebecca Walker and Carrie Mae Weems. Winners also are afforded performance and exhibition opportunities at some of the nation's leading cultural institutions.

Additionally, YoungArts winners are eligible to be nominated as a U.S. Presidential Scholar in the Arts, one of the nation's highest honors for high school students who exemplify academic and artistic excellence. U.S. Presidential Scholars in the Arts receive a Presidential Medal at the White House and perform and exhibit at the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts and the Smithsonian Institution.

YoungArts alumni who have gone on to become leaders in their fields include actresses Viola Davis, Anna Gunn and Kerry Washington; Broadway stars Raúl Esparza, Andrew Rannells and Tony Yazbeck; recording artists Josh Groban, Judith Hill and Chris Young; choreographers Camille A. Brown and Desmond Richardson; visual artists Daniel Arsham and Hernan Bas; television writer, producer and director Jenji Kohan; and New York Times bestselling author Sam Lipsyte.

New World Symphony

The New World Symphony, America's Orchestral Academy, prepares graduates of distinguished music programs for leadership roles in professional orchestras and ensembles. In the 30 years since its co-founding by Artistic Director Michael Tilson Thomas and Lin and Ted Arison, NWS has helped launch the careers of more than 1,000 alumni worldwide.

A laboratory for the way music is taught, presented and experienced, the New World Symphony consists of 87 young musicians who are granted fellowships lasting up to three years. The fellowship program offers in-depth exposure to traditional and modern repertoire, professional-development training and personalized experiences working with leading guest conductors, soloists and visiting faculty. Relationships with these artists are extended through NWS' extensive online distance learning program.

NWS Fellows take advantage of the innovative performance facilities and state-of-the-art practice and ensemble rooms of the Frank Gehry—designed New World Center, the campus of the New World Symphony, on Miami Beach.

In the hopes of joining the New World Symphony, more than 1,500 recent music school and conservatory graduates compete for about 35 available fellowships each year. The fellows are selected for this highly competitive, prestigious opportunity based on their musical achievement and promise, as well as their passion for the future of classical music.

In addition to turning out accomplished professional musicians, New World Symphony also prepares fellows to pursue careers in conducting, managing music libraries, audio engineering and administration in the musical arts.

Carnival Gold Scholars at FIU

“There is nothing else like the Carnival Gold Scholar Program, as far as what I have seen at FIU and in terms of other programs offered at other universities. This has been a blessing, the most beautiful thing I’ve ever received. I am incredibly grateful for the amount of effort that people put into leadership development, as well as the financial facet. Thanks to the Carnival Gold Scholarship I am now, at age 20, the housekeeping manager at the Hilton Cabana on Miami Beach. ”

Buoniconti Fund to Cure Paralysis

“The funding from The Buoniconti Fund is fundamental for our studies involving mechanisms contributing to the control of movement in both healthy individuals and those living with spinal cord injury in an attempt to improve function in their arms and legs through The Miami Project. The Miami Project is part of the University of Miami Miller School of Medicine and is one of the world’s most comprehensive spinal cord injury research center. We continue to pursue the cure for paralysis.”

Camp Honey Shine

“What I like best at Honey Shine is we get to explore and we’re introduced to new things and new people. We learn how to build our character and how to speak to people. Honey Shine is fun and it’s also educational. The most important thing I’ve learned at Honey Shine is how to be a better person and how to take constructive criticism.”

Dress for Success

"I am so proud and honored to have been chosen for the Carnival Lead-HER-Ship program. Dress for Success has recognized the potential in me to grow and make strides for a better future. I welcome the opportunity to be a mentee under the support of a mentor. I am gaining valuable insight and guidance towards different job opportunities and perhaps, even a career change."

Mission United

"Mission United is interested in how they can help me in all areas of my life. They are resourceful and offer many services. They provided legal assistance as it pertains to the business we formed, Combat Hippies, which includes protecting our intellectual property, including our logos, the name, the scripts, along with all the people that are associated with the production. We absolutely would not have been able to launch our business without Mission United."

Chapman Partnership

"Chapman Partnership helped me find a job and enrolled my daughter in their day care. I had a safe place to be, to save money and be in a position to start again. When I was ready to leave, they helped me with my first, last, and rental deposit, and gave me all the household items that I needed to get me settled in my new place – even diapers."

Whether it’s reading to a child, preparing a plate of food for a stranger in need or beautifying a garden, the FUN Team gives us the opportunity to be part of our community and exposes us to people and organizations that are in true need of our help.
